MILLIONS IN IT.

It has developed that a syndicate headed by William Nelson Cromwell reaped a profit of $36,000,000 by the sale of the securities of the French Panama Canal company to the United States government, which explains why President Roosevelt insisted upon abandoning the Nicaragua route, why Senator John T. Morgan was displaced from the chairmanship of the canal committee and why Cromwell was backed by the Republican senators in his refusal to answer the questions put by Mr. Morgan when a pretended investigation of the purchase of the Panama canal was being made by the senate committee.

Several attempts have been made to obtain the truth of the matter in Paris, and the last investigator, Colonel Bacon, managed to secure enough data to bring several ugly facts to the surface. It was discovered that Charles P. Taft, brother of the Republican candidate for president of the United States, William Nelson Cromwell and J. Pierpont Morgan were prominent members of the syndicate, the last named keeping himself in the background. The story was published in the New York World, and Mr. Taft denied having been connected with the affair. The Chicago News took the matter up and called its Paris correspondent to investigate the matter, and received confirmation of the World charges. Among other things, the correspondent called the following:

When shown yesterday Mr. Taft's denial that he had anything to do with the matter, an eminent American lawyer here, concerned in the old company's affairs, laughed frankly and said:

"They will have a hot time over this thing if it has been published as a campaign bomb. Agents of these men whose names I have given you, as well as of others whom I identify, I am not at liberty to disclose, quietly bought up for several months thousands of shares of the old Panama company, and many of the bonds of the new company all through the country. The small holders of canal paper hastened to take advantage of the 'free for nothing' gifts unaccountably laid at their doors, for the shares for many years had been considered practically worthless by thousands of peasants and other modest owners."

In the meantime at home the government was being successfully worked by the syndicate, and especially by a western member thereof.

So all doubts about the crookedness of the Panama canal purchase are dispelled and the transaction is placed before the American people in all its hideousness. The United States bought the canal from its own citizens, instead of the French shareholders, and the sum of $36,000,000 found its way into the pockets of Charles P. Taft, Cromwell, J. P. Morgan and the other patriots who were in the deal.

The Panama canal swindle perpetrated by the old French company ruined thousands of French citizens and sent the foremost civil engineer of the world to a dishonored grave. In this country the men who enriched themselves at the expense of the government, through the connivance of the highest officials, stand high in the councils of the Republican party, and doubtless have other "melons" to cut in case the brother of one of the leading members of the syndicate is elected president.

FINANCED BY STEEL TRUST.

The man chiefly interested in the success of the Republican party this fall is Andrew Carnegie, and that he should subscribe $20,000 to the Taft campaign fund is not surprising. Carnegie has been the recipient of countless millions under the working of the tariff laws, and is now the possessor of steel corporation bonds to the amount of half a billion dollars. It may be true that the $20,000 contribution was really put up by the gigantic trust, and that the name of Mr. Carnegie was used to cover up the crime.

The president of the United States is said to regard the steel corporation as a "good" trust, and it certainly has been a good producer when Republican corruption funds have been raised from time to time. But there are compensations outside of the tariff laws, while the country at large was reeling under the panic last fall, the Tennessee Coal & Iron company was gobbled up by the steel trust with the express approval of President Roosevelt, who has been slobbering over the magnates ever since, probably with the end in view of "touching them up" for campaign expenses, just as Rogers and Harriman were induced to part with their hundreds of thousands four years ago, the only difference being that the goods would be delivered in case of the steel trust.

Mr. Gary reciprocates. While abroad recently he bestowed great praise upon the president, and also commended the action of the men engaged in the iron and steel business for keeping up prices, which leads the New York Journal of Commerce to observe:

"This frankly puts the steel corporation on the same high moral level as the president of the United States. It is the price of good trusts and intends never to be had any more. But Judge Gary does not mean to confine the virtues of this great and good trust to itself. He would have them pervade the iron and steel business of the world. 'The manufacturers of iron and steel,' he says, 'of all countries should be working together with and for one another.' He would not advocate anything 'antagonistic to the laws or public welfare,' but there should be 'a full and free interchange of ideas and information,' and an 'organized committee of men whose advice should always be followed.' This would be the 'community of interest' he converted into a Christian brotherhood and a sanctified monopoly. Therein would be the reward of virtue and goodness, and the example might serve to regenerate all the earth. Petroleum, powder and tobacco, and even railroad freight rates, might be in the hands of intelligent, broad-minded, honest and sincere men, who could not be surpassed. May the time be hastened. Ill fares the land to hastening ill a prey. Where men accumulate and trusts decay."

In Mr. Bryan's speech at Paris, Mo., yesterday, he furnished proof in the shape of a letter from the office of the attorney general of the United States that the steel trust is immune from prosecution under a Republican administration. That the immunity has been purchased not a doubt remains in the mind of any sane person in the United States.

BUSINESS AND POLITICS.

According to the stock market reports in the press and the letters sent out by New York brokerage firms to their customers, business is being held back on account of the uncertainty of the outcome on Nov. 3. Without a shadow of excuse, no effort is being made in some branches of trade to improve the situation developed by the panic prior to election day. Of course, the fly in the ointment of the protected interests is the probability of the election of Mr. Bryan, but the time has arrived when the evil predictions of these people must be discounted. In the market letter of Clevs & Co. the following statement is made:

"It is not to be expected that politics will have any very serious or permanent effect upon trade movements, or prices, because actual conditions are not materially affected by such circumstances, and orders held back pending uncertainty will simply accumulate and accentuate activity later on. History shows that the effect of a presidential campaign upon business has always been more sentimental than actual."

That is the gospel truth, and the wonder is that the men who profess to have the welfare of the country at heart and who have been so vociferously shouting for the return of prosperity did not calmly go ahead with their business affairs instead of trying to scare the people into voting for Mr. Taft.

GREEN AS GOARDS.

Several youths who might justly claim kinship with Verdant Green, turned up at Ithaca, N. Y., to "get their education" at Cornell the other day, a particularly innocent lot of lambs, one should say. They were "piped" by a gang of bunco-steers who had stationed themselves at convenient places on the campus. One by one the fledglings were approached. Each was told that for $1 he could buy a ticket which would admit him to all the buildings, assure him of courteous treatment from the professors and get a good place in the registration line. Those who did not look as if they would part with 50 cents as a special favor. The men who fleeced the freshmen are supposed to have been upper classmen. If they were, their future pathway in life is plainly indicated.

It is doubtful if four years in college will make ordinarily intelligent men out of the suckers who gave up their money. You couldn't flim-dam a western boy that way.

Colonel William F. Stewart is no longer on the active list of the United States army because Theodore Roosevelt wills it so. While the countries of the old world are becoming more liberal, even Turkey establishing a constitutional form of government, the United States has become an autocracy.

Members of the Welsh choir who recently sang in the august presence of the occupant of the White House declined wine offered at the end of the performance. Not one man out of a total of twenty-five would take a drink, not even with the president of the United States.

The poet Campbell said something about Austria in the matter of the partition of Poland which appears to fit at the present time. The "imperial thief" has not changed in nature with the passing of the last century.

A Democratic house of representatives was never so badly needed as at present. There may be other jobs to investigate besides the Panama canal graft.

In the language of the New York World, if you don't register you can't be card indexed.

If Spry is elected, the balance of the state will have to overcome the unanimous vote of Utah county. Even Smoot wouldn't have the nerve to vote against "young Jesse."

Small wonder that Charles P. Taft can afford to finance his brother's campaign. Exposure of the Panama canal graft shows where he got the money.

If Judge Taft could only be as certain of election as Governor Hughes is of defeat he might take great comfort at this stage of the game.

It seems Judge Parker defied Mr. Roosevelt to deny the statements made in his Baltimore speech. Silence, like suicide, is confession.

THERE IS NO FAILURE.

(Success.)
There is no failure. Life itself is a song of victory o'er death, and ages long have told the story old of triumph wrought. Unending, from things once held for naught. The battle's over; though defeated now, In coming time the waiting world shall bow. Before the throne of Truth that's builded high. Above the dust of those who ashes lie. All heedless of the glorious fight they won. When death obscured the light of victory's sun.

There is no failure. If we could but see Beyond the battle line; if we could be Where battle smoke does ne'er becloud the eye. Then we should know that where these prostrate lie Accoutred in habiliments of death, Sweet Freedom's radiant form has drawn new breath. The breath of life which they so nobly gave. Shall swell anew above the lowly grave. And give new life and hope to hearts that beat Like battle drums that never sound retreat.

There is no failure. God's immortal plan Accounts no loss a lesson learned for man. Defeat is oft the discipline we need To save us from the wrong, or teaching heed. To errors which would else more dearly cost. A lesson learned is ne'er a battle lost. Where'er the cause is right, be not afraid; Defeat is then but victory delayed. And e'en won when battle flags are furled.

Kidneys Cured by This Simple Treatment

Get your druggist to mix the following ingredients: One-half ounce fluid extract Buchu, one ounce of compound fluid Balmwort and two ounces of syrup Sarsaparilla compound. Shake well and take a tea-spoonful before each meal and one when retiring. Drink plenty of water, but little of any liquid at meal times. The Buchu is an excellent tonic for the kidneys and bladder, but combined with the excellent qualities of Balmwort and Sarsaparilla, its efficacy is ten times greater. The great urinary specialist, Chas. whose single fees range from $500 to $1,000, acknowledges in his latest reports that this simple mixture is most reliable and will cure all but the most complicated and aggravated kidney and bladder affections; therefore, it is well worth trying.

Puffing under the eyes, headache, dizziness, burning of the eyes, blurred vision, extreme nervousness and insomnia all indicate urinary trouble. Many more symptoms could be named, but the reader will surely recognize them.

TO THE BELLE OF MONDAY.

(Alice E. Allen in Judge.)
Writing out, wild Belle, with swish and swash,
With cloud of steam and rub-a-dub,
With squeak of wringer, creak of tubs—
Writing out, wild Belle, the weekly wash.

Writing out the old, writing out the new:
Writing lightly, Belle, and have a care—
That sheet is tearing. Let it tear!
'Tis thus we tell the false from true.

Writing out that shirt waist home designed:
It ne'er shall vex my spirit more.
I'll send it to the heathen poor
To help re-dress some womankind.

Writing out that slowly fading frock
Of ancient form and last year's sleeves;
That shirt quite a la mode of Steve's,
And Maud's new-fangled stock.

Writing out odd shapes of every size—
The ever-narrowing under vest.
The worn-out socks, and all the rest—
Writing out, wild Belle, to the wild skies.

FALL TIME.

(Chicago Record-Herald.)
A haunting sadness fills the heart,
And there is pathos in my song;
How swiftly do the days depart,
How briskly autumn speeds along!
The poplar's cheek is yellowing,
The shadows lengthen day by day;
The chickens hatched out in the spring
Have brought such joys as brothers bring
And gone their way.

The nests are empty on the boughs;
The recent bridegroom hears his bride
Remind him of the solemn vows
He made the day he put aside
The freedom which he long had known
And which shall be for him no more;
The tuneful oriole has flown,
And on the hills the ewes disown
The lambs they bore.

Yet here and there a petal sways,
Belated, in the autumn breeze;
The distant hills are dimmed with haze
And crimson streaks the maple trees;
The chorus girls line up with great, glad signs of hope, or filled with fear,
While stage doors guards expectorate
Upon the steps and let them wait—
The fall is here.
